COURT SPLITS $4500,000 NOTORIOUS GAS DEAL PROFITS

OIL KING ROGERS MUST DISGORGE $2,250,000

HENRY H. ROGERS'S WITNESS STAND FACE.

This is Henry H. Rogers court face, embodying the usual expression on his features when he gave his answers to so many questions involving the use of millions—"I refuse to answer on the advice of counsel." It was sketched in court by a BOSTON AMERICAN artist.

U. S. Circuit Court Decides Against Standard Oil Magnate in Noted New England Gas and Coke-Bay State Gas Case.

Henry H. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, must pay the receiver of the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware at least one-half of the $4,500,000 profit which he made in the now notorious New England Gas and Coke-Bay State Gas deal nearly ten years ago.

This decision against Rogers, which will lessen his wealth by certainly $2,250,000, and perhaps a larger sum, was handed down by Judge Putnam in the United States Circuit Court to-day. The judgment will be issued in the name of George Wharton Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware.

Pepper sued Rogers for $4,500,000, the amount of profit, with interest, which he claimed Rogers made for himself by virtue of his position as a trustee of the Bay State Company. Although the amount given him is less than was asked, it is a material victory against the oil magnate.

In the opinion handed down by Judge Putnam, Moorfield Story, the famous Boston lawyer, is appointed master to decide what part of the $4,500,000 Rogers must give up. If he is unable to fix the exact amount which Rogers is entitled to retain, he is instructed to divide the amount, and in any event Rogers must turn over $2,250,000.

"STAR CHAMBER" HEARING.

The case was heard before a master, Canton Bouvé, in Bene and July, 1905, with the utmost secrecy. It was held in the office of Walter I. Badger, personal counsel for Rogers, and all representatives of the press were barred. This was base for the spite of Mr. Rogers, who refused to testify publicly.

After the "star chamber" proceedings, the case was argued before Judge Putnam early last Winter. Sherman L. Whipple appeared for the plaintiff and James M. Beck, former assistant United States Attorney General for the defendant. The briefs of both were exhaustive and the arguments occupied several weeks. Alfred Bromfield and Mr. Badger assisted Mr. Whipple.

POLICE CLOSE ON BOY MURDERER'S TRAIL

ARREST HOURLY EXPECTED FOR DEATH OF TWELVE-YEAR-OLD JOHN STREUB.

GREAT BARRINGTON, July 18.—An arrest is hourly expected in the mysterious murder of twelve-year-old John Streub of Housatonic, whose body was found Sunday buried under pine boughs in the woods.

The investigation is being carried on by State Detectives Wood and Rhodes, assisted by Officer Edward Rathbun.

The theory that the boy was killed by tramps has been practically given up in the light of new facts. Benjamin White, with whom it was first supposed that John Streub disappeared, has returned to his home and has given a clear story of his whereabouts, which is substantiated by several people.

The police have questioned the members of the family rather closely. The last person to see young Streub alive was Arthur Hatch, who saw him in front of H. H. McDonald's store Tuesday.

Tells Several Stories.

Emil Streub, father of the murdered boy, has told many stories regarding the disappearance of his son and some of them are thought to be conflicting. He has admitted that he often punished the lad severely for his acts and that on June 30 the boy set fire to Rose Cargilo's clothing by throwing a firecracker at her. For this act he was punished and when the father was asked to pay for the cost of replacing the dress the boy was again whipped. The latter punishment was administered on the day before John left home.

The father said that he commenced a search for the boy the day after he left home and that he went to the home of Joseph Adams near the cemetery, which is nearly opposite the woods where the body was found. Mr. Streub further states that he did not look for his son in the woods. This probably accounts for the rumor that the father was seen Tuesday evening coming from the direction of the woods.

Father Calls Police.

Mr. Streub went to the home of officer Rathbun yesterday and appeared to be rather excited and wanted to talk regarding the case. He told the officer that Mrs. Robert Maxfield saw a stranger Wednesday morning with two boys, but he says this could not have been Johnny, as he was probably dead Tuesday. He admits being quick tempered and often whipped his son, but never with a stick. The officers are at a loss to account for the hiding of the body in such a conspicuous place and there are several strong beliefs that it was placed there after dark and in his haste

WILL EJECT HIS AGED TENANT

Mrs. Mary Stevens and her nephew, R. F. Stevens, are to-day at their one-room apartment home at No. 14 Parmenter street, where they spent last night in quiet and seclusion, despite the efforts of Landlord Aronson to eject them.

Yesterday afternoon Aronson replaced the windows in the basement.

"Mrs. Stevens is an old woman and I didn't want her to catch cold on such a chilly night," was his statement. The coldness was not apparent along Parmenter street, as everybody was outdoors, except Mrs. Stevens family, who remained quietly in their stronghold with the doors barred and the curtains drawn.

Aronson declares that he will have the tenants out to-day.

PRESIDENT IN RAIN SAVES HAY

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 18.—After camping the night before in the rain on the shores of Cold Spring Harbor, with his sons, Quentin and Archie, and their cousins, Philip and George Roosevelt, President Roosevelt p. in a hard day at farming yesterday, in spite of the fact that the sun was making its hottest record of the season. He pitched and stowed a lot of hay just in time to save it from a terrific thunderstorm which swept Long Island.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 18.—Having twice already won the Glenview cup, Walter Egan will tee off to-day in the battle for the third attempt at the trophy in the annual Glenview open tournament.

Terrorism All Over Russia, Beaureaucrats

URGE CZAR TO CIVIL WAR

Advise This in Desperate Hope of Checking Progress of Duma's Power.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 18.—While the Czar is refusing to recognize the demand of the Duma that a constitutional ministry be appointed, Russia seems on the verge of breaking into revolution again. The advisers of the Emperor at Peterhof are counselling civil war rather than any surrender of absolutism, and while the Czar hesitates, news of terror comes from widely scattered points in the empire.

The General Staff Commission, which is investigating the loyalty of the army, is already learned that there is revolutionary sentiment and disaffection in six guard regiments, twenty-six line, seven cavalry, six artillery and five sapper. The Czar and his advisers can be sure as to the loyalty of very few commands.

Serious troubles have swept the province of Voronezh, where the peasantry has arisen as one man. More than twenty estates in the district were burned last night and several landed proprietors were killed. Proprietors who could do so deserted their property and fled to Bobroff, where they now hide in a state of terror. The Governor, with a strong force of Cossacks, have arrived in Bobroff, but the peasants' force is so strong that they are continuing their pillaging, striking guests remote from the soldiery and rendering fruitless the efforts to put the insurrection down.

Police Chief Fatally Injured.

In Tiflis Chief of Police Marling was fatally wounded by a bomb, thrown from the Georgian Nobles' School, yesterday. A leg and arm were blown off and he was taken away in a dying condition. Marlinoff was one of the most hated officials in that section of Russia, because of his maltreatment of peasants and his stern measures of repression.

From Sevastopol comes news that the workmen employed at the arsenal of the admiralty have struck in sympathy with the Ochakoff mutineers, whose trial has begun, and have been joined by the street car employes and street car drivers.

At Bobroff an alleged government provocateur was discovered by workmen yesterday, and was beaten to death.

At Yaroslav bombs were exploded at the residences of the chief of police and an officer of the gendarmerie.

At Neshatkino, Simbirsk Province, the Town Hall was set on fire yesterday and the entire village, consisting of 300 houses, was consumed.

The Monastery of the Nativity at Moscow has been plundered of all its jewels and sacred relics and $16,000 in cash.

Pillage All Over Poland.

Throughout Poland systematic pillaging of the Government [illegible] shops is in progress. The Central Police office at Warsaw was robbed yesterday and a gendarme was killed.

At Lublin, Poland, [illegible] authorities yesterday executed a [illegible] who was suspected of being a [illegible] at Nishni Novgorod and Yaroslav. [illegible] officers were killed and killed. The gendarmes of the First District [illegible] Yesterday refused to [illegible] out on their beats [illegible] until authorities [illegible] assured that the [illegible] manner used into the [illegible] would be repaid with full interest. The men marched to the Second District, where they induced their comrades to join them. Cossacks were summoned and the police were surrounded and threatened with arrest, but they held out until the Chief of Police assured them that their demands would be investigated and all wrongs would be righted.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 18.—The Czar learns from Russian officials that the revolutionists plan to make attacks simultaneously on all the capitals, their object being to cause the intervention of the powers.

Incidents in Russia's New Revolutionary Terrorism

Twenty estates in one district burned by peasants.
Many proprietors killed.
Strong force of Cossacks at Bobroff unable to overawe peasantry.
Bombs exploded in house of chief of police at Yaroslav.
Organized pillaging of Government spirit shops throughout Poland.

PLAN TO FREE THAW ON BAIL OF $100,000

NEW YORK, July 18.—Harry K. Thaw, his counsel and family, are planning a legal move that, if successful, will release him from his present imprisonment on bail. It is planned, by means of habeas corpus and other legal expedients, to attempt to get the charge against him changed to murder in the second degree. Should he succeed in this, a petition will then be made for release of the prisoner on bail. Mrs. William Thaw, with all her rich relatives ready to offer the necessary bail, however much it might be, "I would offer $1,000,000, or half a million," she said to-day, "if my son could be released from that terrible place."

White Has Revolver.

That Harry Kendall Thaw's life was threatened by Stanford White within twenty hour hours before he killed him, and that the young millionaire shot the architect while the latter was reaching to his pocket for a revolver, is the newest line of defence for the man now in the Tombs.

Thaw is ready to swear, it is declared, that when armed White always carried his revolver in a coat pocket, instead of his hip pocket. Thaw will also testify that he approached White's table that night on the Madison Square roof garden with the intention of warning the architect to leave Evelyn Nesbit Thaw alone.

This line of evidence forms the basis of Clifford W. Hartridge's hopes that Thaw has a possible defense other than the insanity plea, which the prisoner is so determined not to make.

That there was conclusive evidence that White had threatened Thaw's life, and that there had been a "plot" at one time on the part of the dead architect, was not even intimated before the states act was made to the American last night. Mr. Hartridge believes that Thaw has a chance for his life, on the plea of justifiable homicide, instead of insanity.

The new plan involves the use of legal procedure as unusual as that invoked yesterday, when two new decisions secured from Judge Blanchard a writ of prohibition, restraining the District Attorney's office from taking further evidence against Thaw.

One of these unusual legal steps will be the application for the release of Thaw on bail, which his wealthy mother is ready to furnish in even an unheard of amount.

THAW FAMILY IN CONFERENCE.

That Thaw, as the person whose life is in danger, and naturally the one most interested, will be allowed to have his way, is still subject to grave doubt. There was a family conference at the Lorraine yesterday afternoon, at which Mrs. William Thaw and others of the family met and talked with Judge W. M. K. Olcott, who was the chief of Thaw's criminal counsel until he was discharged in a curt note which the prisoner wrote last Saturday.

POLICEMAN IN CHASE DRAGS CAPTIVE ALONG

Captures Fugitive After Forcing One Man Under Arrest to Sprint.

HOLD BURGLAR SUSPECTS

Dragging a man who, when he had arrested, Lieutenant Elliot Trainor of the Dedham police police force by the nape of several important captures in the past five or six weeks, early today caught the second man of a trio suspected of attempting to break and enter the store of George W. Shattuck, No. 703 Shawmut avenue. The man arrested are James Duncan, alias William, and Edward A. Mitchell, each twenty-three years of age and living at No. 77A Dover street.

Trainor was at Dover and Washington streets early today when the two young men passed. Furnished with a description of two of the suspects who had tried to break into Shattuck's store, Trainor grabbed Mitchell. Duncan ran and Trainor, who is a big powerful man, forced Mitchell to run with him in front of him. The chase was along Dover street to Shawmut avenue and Milford street, where he seized Duncan and dragged both men to a patrol box and the two were sent to the Dedham station house.

The attempt to break into the store took place on Monday night last. A Dorchester man, whose name the police will not reveal was awakened by a noise and, after observing to the description of Mitchell and Duncan, with a third man, whom they were seen by the Dorchester man to approach Shattuck's store, and after the third man sealed the door and to climbing through the transom of the second story store.

Shattuck, who is crippled, sleeps in a back room. He was awakened and hurled a plate at the man who scared, tried to climb over the transom to the sidewalk, hurting his knee. The witness ran for a policeman, but when he returned with one the trio had fled.

ROADS FACE INDICTMENTS IN REBATE EVIL

Federal Grand Jury Now Probing Grain and Live Stock Shipments.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The July Federal Grand Jury has settled down to serious consideration of the other rebating charges made by William Randolph Hearst at the time he sent Attorney-General Moody the evidence which resulted in the indictment of the Vanderbilt lines, the Sugar Trust, officials of the railroads and two prominent Detroit sugar merchants.

The Grand Jury was in session yesterday for several hours, and a number of railroad clerks were among those who appeared. Other witnesses were formerly connected with the traffic departments of the railroads, and there was a well-founded prediction about the Federal Building that the New York Central would soon have company in fighting the Elkins law in the courts.

Grain and Live Stock Rebates.

Thus far the alleged rebating inquired into has all been done in connection with westbound traffic, but it is said that no lance are as yet started on eastbound traffic, and that before the federal grand jury ceases its investigations witnesses will be returned for shipments of the agents in connection with rates of different commodities on both eastbound and westbound traffic.

It is said both grain and live stock shipments will figure to some or less prominent part in the inquiries, but it is thought so far as to indicate that some of the criminal prosecutions may be started in a little while, depending on their success in connection with the evidence in hand.

Nothing could be learned relative to the rumor that Attorney-General Moody and Corporation Counsel Tufted Stimson, District Attorney Jerome, Assistant District Attorney Stimson, will be summoned to discuss the question.

AUTHOR'S WIFE SAYS NEGRESS

CINCINNATI, July 18.—Mathias Foley, a negress now confined in the county jail, fight for the estate of Lafcadio Hearn, the famous newspaper writer, who died last year in Japan, it was asserted today that she was his wife.

She alleges that they were married in this city in 1877, shortly after Hearn became connected with a newspaper. Three years later Hearn went with him to the Far East and never saw his wife again.

The negress declares that she is now being divided from Hearn's books in this country, and that she will contest the matter both with children and child.

CONSTITUTION GOES TO DOCK

The old frigate Constitution is to be moored Friday from her moorings at the upper end of the navy yard near the Washington Arch to a dock that will be the first time that the historic ship has been in a short cruise since she came here from Portsmouth several years ago.

With the government appropriation of $100,000, the ship will be thoroughly repaired. The hull will be so strengthened her from spreading when she is dry docked. Only the presence of water now prevents the rotten hull from falling apart.

PAYING FORTUNE FOR BURIED SACRED VESSELS

Morgan Buys Either Treasure Or a Huge Gold Brick

The telltale marks of advancing years are shown in this picture of the money king, this being especially noticeable in the furrowed flesh at the throat; the financier, however, is still keen to opportunities in the money market, and also shows his old-time energy in pursuit of the world's most valued art treasures.

Articles Alleged to Have Been Hidden in Cyprus in the Seventh Century.

Paris Experts Call Them Either a Glorious Acquisition or a Monumental Fraud.

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, July 18.—J. Pierpont Morgan believes he has found the Treasure of the Ages. Either that is the fact, declares M. Monnet, the great antiquarian authority, or Mr. Morgan has been made the victim of the most monumental of frauds.

Mr. Morgan has paid a fortune for what he has been assured are the gold and silver ecclesiastical vessels of the early Christian church that were buried in the Island of Cyprus in the seventh century. How long they had been in existence before they were buried can only be guessed at, but it is known that Christianity drove out Paganism from the Isle very early in the beginning of the era, so that on the assumption that these vessels were authentic the date of their making would run back 1,300 years or so.

The story of the dealers is that these sacred vessels were buried when the Moslems invaded Cyprus, and the facts as their discovery do not seem to be exactly understood.

Mr. Morgan has also purchased fifty "Greek bronzes, which ran back from the Sicilian Apollo to the first Christian century. Now has he forgotten the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, for he has enough reproduction of Greek vases that shall supplement and fill out the array already there.

In view of Mr. Morgan's notoriety among the art dealers, his statement, made when he arrived here, that he had come to take "the best" of the finds, met many smiles and sneers in Paris. The papers are asking what the financier would do if he "got busy."

Seen, the celebrated French caricaturist, has been drawing Mr. Morgan, and all French society is going into gales of laughter over his presentation of the American millionaire.

Seen is considered not only the most fatal caricaturist in France, but the force most cartoonist in Europe. He is a small, unprepossessing looking man, clean shaven and suggestive of a jockey, but he is the pet of the intellectual aristocracy and society, and soon will be transferred to Chicago at once.

70 LEGISLATORS DELAY DENIALS OF PASS GRAFT

This Does Not Include 34 Members Who Could Not Be Reached by Telegraph.

Although four days have passed since the telegrams asking them whether they possessed passes on railroads were delivered, but still female members of the House of Representatives and sixty-two members of the House from whom replies have not been received. Additional responses were delivered to the office of the clerk and received for, it is possible that some of the legislators may be out of town and have not as yet received the messages. The total of 70 also includes the thirty-four members whose names were closed so that the dispatches could not be delivered.

That not a member of either branch has admitted that he travels on a free railroad pass. Two legislators have said that they have received transportation from the railroads, but not in their legislative capacity. One of them is Charles E. Hodgdon of Pittsfield, is an employe of the Boston & Albany road. The other—Simon Boyle of Taunton—says he has had transportation as a newspaper man.

Those Who Haven't Answered.

Whether or not District Attorney Moran's investigation will demonstrate anything to the contrary remains to be seen. It is exactly a violation of the statutes for a Legislator to accept or a railroad to offer a free pass in Massachusetts, but if evidence is required to prove the various indictments will follow the receipt of the telegrams have not yet replied to the telegrams.

MILL HANDS GET SMALL ADVANCE

LOWELL, July 18.—The Textile Council will hold a special meeting to-night to act on a communication from the Cotton Manufacturers' Association in reply to the council's letter of last week.

In the letter the manufacturers say that some advance may be granted, but it will not be as early as July 23d. They intimate there will be a readjustment of the schedule of wages, and in some instances the amounts to be paid will not equal that of the present scale.

The association refuses the proposition for a general and uniform advance of ten per cent. in wages.

AGONIZING ITCHING BURNING ECZEMA

Affected Whole System—Could Not Sleep Nights—Lost Flesh and All Run Down—Advised By a Friend to Try Cuticura and Now Gladly Recommends

CUTICURA REMEDIES TO ALL SUFFERERS

"I write you to say I am cured of eczema, and can say that I owe it to the Cuticura Remedies, and I gladly recommend them to all suffering with any form of eczema. For four long months I suffered agony and itching and burning feeling which affected my whole system, so as I could not sleep nights, and I did not care to go into public, as I would have no ease. I lost flesh and was all run down. I tried everything I could think of and also everything that was advertised, but got no relief, until I was advised by a friend to try Cuticura, which I did, and am gratefully say I got immediate relief. I would gladly recommend Cuticura to any one suffering as I did with eczema, and can verify my statement by members and also intimate friends of my family. I trust that this testimonial may be of some benefit to persons suffering with any skin diseases." Chester A. Bailey, 260A Highland Avenue, Oct. 17, 1905. Somerville, Mass.

CURED AT EXPENSE OF 75c.

"When an infant I had a bad humor on my head, for which I was treated with Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and now I have a good head of hair and the humor is entirely gone. Is only required one box of Ointment and one cake of Soap to effect a cure. I send this with good permission to publish." Miss Ina McNaughton, June 13, 1905. Milo, Me.

GILLETTE IS GUILTY, KILLED GRACE BROWN

—DISTRICT-ATTORNEY WARD

Prosecutor Finds the Tennis Racquet With Which He Says Girl Was Hit.

SAYS PROOF IS COMPLETE

UTICA, July 18.—District Attorney Ward and Deputy Sheriff Ingraham have returned from the Adirondacks, where they have been picking up evidence against Chester E. Gillette, who is charged with murdering Grace Brown, his sweetheart and supposed fiancee, at Big Moose last Wednesday.

They covered the entire route from Big Moose to Eagle Bay and thence to Arrowhead, where Gillette was captured, and as nearly as possible, they made the trip over the trails which Gillette tramped with his guilt case after he left his companion in the lake. They attained the object of their errand which was to find the tennis racquet which Gillette took into the boat with him and which was missing when he reached Arrowhead. It is supposed Gillette used the racquet in striking the girl on the head before he threw her overboard.

"Got Him Pat," Says Prosecutor.

"We have found a lot of things," said Deputy Ingraham, but when asked what "things" he would not say.

The District Attorney appeared to be satisfied with the results of the expedition.

"Did you find the tennis racquet?" was asked.

"Well, I don't say that we didn't find it."

"How about the umbrella?"

"Now, I can't talk with you just now," was the reply.

"I am averse to talking much about this case," continued the District Attorney, "but you will be perfectly safe in saying that we have got this fellow pat, and that there is no chance of his breaking the chain of evidence we have built around him the past three days. Gillette deceived and murdered this girl, and I shall prove it."

Blood Came from Wound.

James H. Higby, Justice of the Peace at Big Moose before whom Gillette was arraigned, is in Herkimer to-day. He helped to remove the body of Grace Brown from the water at the time it was found, and says that when it was raised into the boat blood ran from the wound over the eye. This is the wound which the surgeons afterwards rendered the girl senseless before she was dumped overboard.

The district attorney has taken the depositions of Miss Gladys Rhodes of Tioga and Miss Josephine Patrick of Corning, who, with Clyde Dalton, went to Herkimer and waited there for the district attorney to return. The young women had left home for a short vacation at Fourth Lake, and with them Gillette took a pleasure trip up Bear Swamp Stream. Miss Patrick resides on the street where Gillette roomed in Cortland, and they knew each other in social circles.

Girls Tell What Gillette Said.

The young women, it is said, were questioned as to the actions of Gillette on the trip and any remarks he made. It is reported that Gillette told them he had intended to meet a college friend in the woods, with whom he was going to go into vacation, but as he had not met him he thought he would return to Cortland. Reporters could not get near the young women to talk with them, and their fathers would not discuss the case.

Gillette, instead of verging on collapse, slept and eats well and reads considerably, though he is not allowed to read newspapers. The other prisoners tell him of some of the things that appear concerning him.

He was visited by Under Sheriff Knoch and he told that officer the other fellows had laughed at him because he had to go in the morning than any one else. He asked the under sheriff to get him a clean shirt and another necktie.

The District Attorney has secured a page from the register of the Hotel Martin which Gillette had boosted himself and Miss Brown as Charles Gordon and wife. They spent a night there before going into the Adirondacks. The hotel people declare that the register is being tampered with, but the District Attorney won out and carried the page to Herkimer with him.

ARREST IS HOURLY EXPECTED IN CASE OF BOY MURDERED IN WOODS

SLAIN BOY AND HIS FATHER.

"TREASON" DEFENCE OF BAILEY IS ANSWERED

August Cosmopolitan Replies to Texan's Statement on His Corporation Service.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Cosmopolitan, astonishing that a man of Mr. Bailey's parts should invite investigation, has secured a reply to Senator Joseph W. Bailey's defense in the Senate on June 27, against Mr. David Graham Phillips's exposure of the Texas Senator in his series of articles on "The Treason of the Senate." The Cosmopolitan says in part:

"If the exposure of Senator Bailey's wealth-getting associations has conspicuous affiliations and his Senate services to the 'interests' was not as blighting as could be wished by such as demand nothing short of legal evidence of crime what shall be said of his responses? His attitude upon the witness-stand have proved guilty of being the retroducer of the exploded Standard oil defense. He has been asked by them for answers, with which they doubt not will be ready, concerning his going back to Texas, and Standard oil is so much to Senator Bailey. What occasion is it? And what agent of the associated interests which control Senator Bailey is friendly to him? Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania, who has gone to Congress both as a Democrat and as Republican, is Senator Bailey's executor's right hand in spots for Standard oil. He backed to fill Mr. Bailey's swelling purse, and Mr. Bailey in his elaborate defense had to ask the name of Mr. Sibley or the $250,000 ranch which Mr. Sibley is reported to have put him in possession of, though Mr. Bailey long ago carried ex-Governor Francis of Missouri with that act of generosity.

Boasts of His Wealth.

"Senator Bailey is not able to conceal the wealth he has acquired since he entered Congress, so he boasts of it. * * * Would any one WHO HAD a case against the Standard oil that he wanted taken into court go to Mr. Bailey and engage him as his attorney? Would he trust him to fight the case both and full, regardless of the attack and assault, political and professional, of the corporation which is now controlling his political destiny? Certainly Mr. Bailey as the people's attorney in the Senate. Who would the people be worse served than a private client in the courtroom? Why should they put up with a divided allegiance, even in the instance of a gentleman of Senatorial station in duty so keen as Mr. Bailey, who, with an unrivalled eloquence can drape the fine nicely between client and public, when passing from the service of one to the other and back again.

Helped Restore Standard Oil.

"Let it be admitted that an attorney who has himself for a client enjoys undoubtedly a proverbial disadvantage. But even so, a lawyer of Mr. Bailey's reputation, however hard pressed, should be above the sort of petitioning that is looked for from a police court practitioner.

"Mr. Phillips wrote of Senator Gorman as chairman of the Finance Committee when the Wilson tariff bill was being remodeled to suit the 'interests.' He should have said the Ways and Means Committee, Senator Bailey made much of this slip, and asked his auditors to discredit altogether a writer capable of so gross a misstatement. But he confessed in the next breath that he had aided in restoring Standard Oil to the Texas field, only advising as a 'strict counsel' that it should come in as a 'new' corporation, with new character, and so technically comply with the law. * * *

Puts Himself Beside Gorman.

"Senator Bailey could speak, give and accuse the sleeper therein of his misdeeds. Conduct unworthy of humanity, is infernal; charity, has agreed to condemn ever since it has been able to speak and be heard. The deed is the deed, and cannot answer. But when at the grave appears a living eulogist, then the dead cannot be deemed silent any more, and truth has become superior to the law. Senator Bailey pleads that the Phillips exposure of himself was on an affair with the exposure of Gorman, and accordingly hopes that the solemnity of death will spare him examination of the parallel, which it is too to-day.

That the police are fairly confident they have made no mistake in laying the blame is evidenced by their actions yesterday afternoon when the chief of police men held a meeting for the avowed purpose of offering a reward for the arrest of the murderer or for information that would lead to his detection. They had been in session but a few moments when the chief of police forbade reporters from attending to the selectmen quietly for a time, but it was afterward given out that the board was convinced of the innocence of the police theory and that they could therefore await developments before offering any reward.

Hot weather started in early to-day, especially in Boston and surrounding cities. Seven eight degrees of temperature with a slight humidity made people uncomfortable at 10 o'clock, and the weather bureau says that if the clouds go sailing by the thermometer will be nearer the 100 than any other mark. The humidity this morning was 71 per cent., just one over normal.

At midnight the mercury was 74, then it dropped to 73 for five hours and at 6 o'clock started in at 73 again. Then it went to 74, at 9 75 and at 10 78 degrees, and still on the upward climb.

The weather forecast is fair to-day and Thursday, with light variable winds.

Reports from other sections, merely by way of contrast, seem to be set at Key West, Fla., and 14 at Nantucket, Mass.

To-day's weather will be hotter, it may safely be predicted, than was the hottest July twenty-four hours since records were reported. But it will be cooler to-morrow.

BUS MEN WAR ON VANDERBILT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 18. A startling and unofficial war is declared in the Atlantic City Business Union because Alfred G. Vanderbilt refuses to run coaches from the station to the Steel Pier grounds during the season.

The drivers threatened to apply for an injunction to restrain Vanderbilt from carrying passengers on the grounds that he had no license. To obviate the difficulty Superintendent Milligan put on a bus load and ran it into the grounds with a badge which

The "Quality" of Pabst Beer

The Best Materials and the Cleanest Process Makes It Most Popular.

Pabst's process of brewing is exclusive all the way through, and is the reason why Pabst beer is the most popular brand of beer in the world.

People know when they drink Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer that it is the purest beer in the world, because it is made from the exclusive Pabst eight-day malt. It is the only malt in the world that retains all of the richness of the barley.

People know when they drink Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer that they are drinking a beer that is fully aged, and is never mixed with "young" beer to give it head or body.

People know that for the past sixty years Pabst has been foremost in the manufacture of a superior beer because he has spent millions to brew a beer that is perfect in Age, Purity and Strength, and Pabst's Blue Ribbon stands to-day without an equal as a clean, pure, wholesome, refreshing beverage.

PLAN MONSTER NEGRO SESSION

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Arrangements are completed for holding the greatest assemblage of educated colored people ever in Washington since the emancipation of the slaves, beginning July 31 and continuing about a week. With delegates from over the entire South it is estimated that between 10,000 and 15,000 negroes will be in attendance.

On the first day following Secretary of the Navy Charles J. Bonaparte and Bishop A. Gaines of the A. M. E. Church will make addresses.

Among those who will take part in the sessions will be Bishop C. R. Harris, Bishop Bishop J. W. Bishop Walters and William T. Vernon, the new register of the treasury.

PROBE BOY'S TALE OF ABUSE

Agent Benjamin J. Loring of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children is in Newton to-day investigating both sides of the case of Malcolm Leonard Collins, 9 year old boy, whose step-father, it is said, that his uncle, Daniel Collins of Newton, beat him, burned him with a hot iron and hung him up with ropes. Agent Loring will make a report to Judge Kennedy of the Newton court.

"Daniel Collins, the boy's uncle, sent us word that he would like to see us," was the said Secretary Charles K. Morton of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. "It appears that the boy has been abused, and he came with James to go to the court, though in what form I am not now prepared to say, as there are always two sides to these matters. I personally only heard the boy's story up to date."

PAWNEE BILL HURT, PANIC AT HIS SHOW

NEW YORK, July 18.—A stampede occurred during the performances of Pawnee Bill's Wild West show yesterday at Rockaway, N. J., when a storm blew down several tents. The audience of 1,000 became panic stricken when the main tent began to collapse. Major Lillie (Pawnee Bill) was struck by a falling pole and suffered a dislocated shoulder. Cowboys rounded up 400 runaway horses.

CUMMINGS IS SURE OF A. O. H. PRESIDENCY

Boston Man Shown to Be a Winner After Canvass of Delegates at Saratoga.

CONVENTION WORK BEGINS

Special to the Boston American.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 18.—The contest over the election of a national president for the order of Ancient Order of Hibernians, which will be decided at the national convention assembled to-day, Massachusetts delegates are said to be in a strong position and talked over the contest for the presidency. At the close it was reported that after a thorough canvass of the convention there is no possibility of defeat for Hon. Cummings. The Massachusetts man will be opposed by the Rev. Fr. Kennedy.

The real work of the convention began with the opening session this forenoon, and to-night the delegates will attend a banquet and a grand Union, where many have their inspiration.

The sudden illness of President James E. Dolan before the convention opened yesterday caused considerable uneasiness among the delegates. Mr. Dolan was stricken with stomach trouble, and became so ill that a physician was summoned. He became better, and in the afternoon attempted to take up his work, but soon became ill again and took to his bed.

At 10 o'clock St. Peter's Church was crowded for the celebration of High mass by Rev. Fr. Dennis Moore of Utica preached the sermon, his theme being "Irish Devotion to the Catholic Faith." A number of prominent Catholic clergymen were present and officiated at the mass. The Rev. P. J. Harnett of Burlington, Vt., chaplain for Vermont, was the celebrant, Rev. Fr. Lynch of Albany was deacon, and the Rev. T. A. Coughlin of St. Clement's College sub-deacon.

The parade in the afternoon, in which the organizations took part, together with several outdoor organizations, was the feature of the day. It took half an hour to pass a given point. About forty bands were in the line.

CUMMINGS REPEATS CALL FOR TAGGART'S RESIGNATION

Indianapolis News Declares It Impossible for Him to Remain Democratic Chairman.

HOPELESSLY DISCREDITED

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 18. The Indianapolis News to-day comes to the front in a sensational manner in the matter of the Democratic national committee and the Democratic national chairmanship. The News has been silent on the subject of the Democratic national committee and the Democratic national chairmanship, but to-day it comes out with the broadest intimation that Thomas Taggart must resign as chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The News declares that it is impossible for Taggart to remain chairman of the Democratic national committee and that the Democratic party must have a new chairman. The News says that Taggart has become a liability instead of an asset to the party, and that he must resign.

The News declares that Taggart's connection with the Parker campaign has made it impossible for him to remain chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The News declares that Taggart has been hopelessly discredited, and that he must resign.

SAVE STARVING CREW AT SEA

NEW YORK, July 18. ROGERS MUST HAND OVER $2,250,000

Judge Putnam Decides Against Him in the Bay State Gas Suit.

BROUGHT BY G. W. PEPPER

Reed, and Alexander Lincoln assisted Mr Wilmot.

FOR $3,000,000 AND INTEREST.

The suit is for [illegible] $2,000,000 and interest — $3,000,000 in all — alleged to have been received by Rogers in alleged to have secured said $3,000,000 from Henry M. Whitney and the New England Gas and Coke Company in exchange for the stocks giving the New England company control of the Boston Gas Companies.

The receiver claimed that Rogers was appointed trustee to manage the Boston companies by the Bay State Gas Co. of Delaware, and charged that Rogers had not turned into the treasury of the new debenture Bay State Company of Delaware, the $3,000,000 which he received, including his 2½ to the $2,000,000 sold, for transferring control of the Boston companies to the New England Gas & Coke Company.

The suit was filed in the United States Circuit Court for the district of Massachusetts on October 20, 1905. Whipple, Sears & Ogden were attorneys for the plaintiff, while W. I. Badger, with several other Boston lawyers, represented Mr. Rogers.

The Bill of Complaint.

On or about October 31, 1900, there existed the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware, with authorized capital of $15,000,000, divided into [illegible] shares of $100 each. There also existed the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware, which held the principal ing interest in the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, the South Boston Gas Light Company, the Roxbury Gas Light Company and the Bay State Gas Company of Massachusetts.

The stock of these four Boston companies was deposited with the Mercantile Trust Company of New York and held by it in accordance with two issues of bonds of the New Jersey company. The New Jersey company then came to elect officers, directors and other officials of the Boston companies under a trust agreement.

Because of keen competition in the Boston gas field at the time and unsatisfactory condition of the Bay State Gas Company, the Delaware company had Henry B. Rogers appointed trustee, with the authority to manage the Boston companies for the interest of the Delaware company.

STOCK GIVEN TO ROGERS.

The stock of the New Jersey Company held by the Delaware Company, was transferred to Mr. Rogers, thus giving him an unlimited power over the Boston companies, officers and other officials of the Boston companies, as though he actually held the stock of those companies. By virtue of the trusteeship, the plaintiff claims Mr. Rogers and he has associates became bound to manage the Boston companies in the interests of the Dorchester Company.

The plaintiff also claimed that Rogers held at this time the controlling interest of the Brookline Gas Company and the Dorchester Gas Company, the management connections to the Boston companies. The complaint says Rogers desired to sell his interests in the Brookline and Dorchester companies six months before he accepted the trusteeship of the Boston companies through the Delaware company.

The plaintiff claimed that Rogers received an option on the controlling interest of the Brookline and Dorchester companies, amounting to $6,062,081.46.

For His Own Profit.

Said the complaint:

"The plaintiff is informed and believes, and therefore alleges, that said Rogers sought to secure the management of and control of the said Boston companies in order that he the sole and said management and control, or of delivery and transfer of same in connection with the sale of his interests in the Brookline and Dorchester companies he might thereby secure large compensation and profit to himself; but such purpose on the part of said Rogers was as the plaintiff is informed and believes and the other allegations was unknown to the Delaware company.

"On or about December, 1897, Rogers sold the interest to the New England Gas and Coke Company.

"The plaintiff is informed," said the libel, "said believes and therefore alleges that said Rogers thereafter received money from said Gas and Coke Company, the sum of $2,000,000 in addition to the amount stipulated to him for the sale of his interests in Brookline and Dorchester Companies, and that said $3,000,000 was paid to the Gas and Coke company to Rogers as the price of control of the Boston companies."

It was charged that the $3,000,000 thus alleged to have been received was received from out of the treasury of the plaintiff company, and which demanded that he pay over all funds received through it to the treasury of the company.

It was further charged that after securing the control to the New England Gas Company Rogers received $1,000,000 in bonds for the said stock and $2,000,000 in addition to the $3,000,000.

The bill asked the court to order a decree ordering Rogers to pay into the treasury of the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware the sums received by him as trustee for the corporation from the New England Gas Company, with interest, and to in such other damages as were equitable.

SOMERVILLE POLICE WILL DOWN MOBS

As the result of an attack upon Reserve Policeman Joseph J. Burns, Patrick Smith was to-day fined $25 and Joseph Wentworth in the Somerville court, while Mayor Grimmons ordered the chief of police of Somerville to increase the police force on Washington street, opposite Franklin, where two policemen have been attacked by mobs within one week.

While arresting Smith last night Burns was attacked by a crowd of about seventy-five men. He was pounded in the face and his helmet, which fell from his head, was trampled. The policeman held to his man and sent him to the station, in addition Smith was sent to the East Cambridge House of Correction for three months.

On Saturday night Ibit Patrolman Doolin, while making an arrest near Washington and Franklin streets, was attacked by a mob of 200 and he had a hard task to get his prisoner to the station. Both Doolin and Burns are now on the sick list, having been pinned there because of complaints to the Mayor that order was not being maintained in that section of Somerville. The Mayor says that an investigation will be made to find why these new men are the object of attack, and that in the meantime they must be protected in the discharge of their duty by other patrolmen.

BOUND TO WED, STABS PARENT WHO OBJECTS

Son Draws Pen Knife and Stabs Father While Being Punished for Disobedience.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Conrad Schirmer, who all his life as husband and father has lived by the stern book of discipline, is hovering between life and death in the Harlem Hospital as the result of a stab wound inflicted by his eldest son and namesake, Conried, aged 19. The cause of the stabbing was Clara Lazarus, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl.

When Schirmer discovered that his son was paying attentions to the girl he forbade their calling and declared that the young man should not marry until he reached his majority. The young couple continued their courtship, however. Last night at 11 o'clock Conried had not returned home and Schirmer went to Lazarus home. He found his son there and attacked him, and proceeded to give a thumping for disobedience of orders.

In the struggle young Conried drew a penknife and stabbed his father in the left side, inflicting a serious wound. The young man was taken to the police station, and the father to the hospital.

FREIGHT CAR HOBO ATTACKS SHERIFF

PORTLAND, Me., July 18.—Deputy Sheriff John W. Emery, while supervising for an escaped prisoner in the Boston & Maine Western Division freight yards last night, was assaulted and knocked senseless. He was found two hours later at the foot of an embankment.

NEW MOVE TO CRUSH STANDARD OIL TRUST

ATTORNEY GENERAL BELIEVES HE CAN DISSOLVE THE MONOPOLY BY CIVIL PROCESS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18.—The Department of Justice is confident to-day that it will be able to crush the Standard Oil Company as a trust. Recent investigations show Attorney General Moody called several district attorneys here days ago, and a long and decidedly important phase. That is the feasibility of civil proceedings to dissolve the combine. It has come to be considered by the trust as trying to put the law to death by injunction, and it is said with authority that they will be sought in the Fall. Several indictments in criminal proceedings are also in contemplation in other parts of the country.

Say Evidence Is Ample.

The evidence now in hand is pronounced by competent experts ample to bring about a dissolution of the trust into the original companies that compose it.

This view is held by M. E. Purdy, assistant to the Attorney General, who has just returned from Chicago and St. Paul, it has been in conference with the Government's lawyers, especially with Messrs. Morrison and Kellogg, specially appointed to push the Standard Oil cases.

The moral effect of forcing a dissolution of the Standard Oil Company will spur the department in the demand in these injunction proceedings. Officials here say the Standard's history and organization make it an almost ideal mark for action under Section 4 of the Sherman anti-trust law, which declares that "such proceedings may be by way of petition and praying that such violations shall be enjoined or otherwise prohibited."

Same Fight Still in Control.

Many of the same men have been identified with the company since it became an association in 1872. They were in the company when it was declared an illegal combination by the Ohio courts in 1892, continued with it through the ensuing period of liquidation that lasted until 1899, when the holding company was formed under the New Jersey laws with a capital of $3,000,000. The increase of the capital since then to $106,000,000 and the usual methods of conducting business made the government now has evidence enough in court, all conceivable it is asserted, to make a board case against the government.

This new move will not be allowed to interfere with the criminal prosecutions, for it is said that the grand juries have been finding very satisfactory evidence. The department feels most certain that before that it can find an injunction Standard officials.

The Attorney General feels, it is said, that the dissolution of the organization which is popularly regarded as the biggest and most powerful trust in the country, would be a blow to numerous other trusts, and might be more efficacious in the long run than even the conviction of Mr. Rogers or one of the Rockefellers.

LAURA BIGGAR GETS TOTAL OF $500,000

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 18.—By the recording of a mortgage at the recorder's office at Allegheny City yesterday, in which Laura Biggar, the actress and legal fiduciary under the will of her husband, Henry M. Bennett takes a mortgage on the Bennett property for $25,500. All other litigation over this $1,000,000 estate is ended. Laura Biggar getting $500,000 as per agreement.

SAY MURDER OF WATCHMAN IS PROVED

Preliminary Investigation of Death of Man at New York Hotel Continues.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Coroner Acritelli and Deputy Assistant District Attorney Cardoza, who are engaged in the preliminary hearing of the murder of one and the assault upon two other special watchmen on the eighth floor of the new Plaza hotel last Wednesday, say they will have a clear case for action by the Grand Jury against the seven ironworkers held at the Tombs.

Pursuing the investigation with vigor, ironworkers as witnesses, yesterday developed facts indicating that the murder and assault were premeditated. Another important feature was that one of the iron workers testified practically in confirmation of the statements of O'Toole and Cullen, the surviving watchmen, to the main facts in the case, although the witness declined to identify any of the men engaged in the affair.

The witness in question said at the hearing that he had seen Bruce thrown from the eighth to the fifth floor of the building, and that he had seen O'Toole and Cullen disabled.

Other testimony showing premeditation was offered by Willie Langan, a waiter employed by the ironworkers.

At the conclusion of the hearing yesterday Coroner Acritelli said it was plain that there would be a strong case against the seven under arrest, four on a charge of homicide and three on charges of felonious assault and the suspicion of having participated in the murder.

SPRINGFIELD PARTY LEADERS OUT FOR MORAN

CARROLL PRAISES HIM

Special to the Boston American.

SPRINGFIELD, July 18. The Springfield Democracy is practically unite for John B. Moran. Both of the big factions of the party that have been opposing each other for years have at last found a common ground. Both have declared for Moran.

State Committeeman William G. McKechnie, who was one of the leaders for the Gaston program in the last State convention, has come out squarely for Moran, and says: "He should be the candidate of the party for Governor." And he says so many other complimentary things about Moran that it would take more than a column to print them.

State Committeeman Daniel H. Toomey, who has always fought the Gaston regime, is a Moran enthusiast. Ex-Mayor Hayes and Major Hayes and the man who has opposed them for a long time, former chairman of the City Committee Edward A. McClintock, all indorse the candidacy of Moran.

Colonel John I. Rice, who has written many platforms for the party, welcomes the advent of Moran. And, besides these men, James R. Carroll says nice things about Moran, refuses to feel bad over his candidacy, although urged to be belligerent by the old-time leaders, and refuses to be a candidate against Moran, although urged by numerous admirers and others.

Carroll Russell's Mate.

In the old days of the early nineties, when William E. Russell was making his famous campaigns for Governor, Mr. Carroll was his running mate on the ticket. He was also the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor with John L. Russell.

Unlike ex-Congressman Thayer and Congressman Sullivan, he is not a bit scared by the candidacy of John B. Moran for Governor or by the radicalism of his declaring of principals. While refusing to talk for publication with definite, quoted statements, he will discuss the situation. He went to school with Moran for a while, when they were both youngsters, and says he has always found him honest. He doesn't seem to be filled with any make-believe dread that Moran's candidacy would retard the progress of the Democratic party, and his family affairs there is considerable sentiment for him in Springfield. He says that Boston needs new favorites and would not stop over any wrongdoing. To the theory that Moran is sectional, he makes answer that President Roosevelt and Governor Guild are sectional, and that in his alleged sectionalism Moran is in pretty good company.

Says Moran Is All Right.

Mr. Carroll believes the next President that election will be won by the radicals, and that if believes the Democrats to get a move on, or President Roosevelt will go them one better. The Democrats in their next National platform he believes, will declare for the national ownership of railroads, and will win on that issue.

One surprising thing about the situation in Springfield is the Moran sentiment among the so-called conservatives.

Edward J. Murphy, a person of affairs as the business men's candidate for Mayor put one of the largest real estate holders in this city, is impressed with the good qualities for good for such an aggressive man as Moran. He says: "I believe he is the man well enough to judge whether he is sincere in his efforts, and I believe he is sincere," he says, "there would be work for him to do for the benefit of the people."

Believes in Moran.

Edward A. McClintock, former chairman of the Democratic city committee, says things that have completely surprised his friends. It was expected that he would have nothing kindly to say of Moran, and he generally declares himself pretty emphatically. But he believes in Moran. He says: "I would like nothing well to vote for and support him. I believe he will be nominated and can be elected."

These men, McKechnie, McClintock and Murphy are the leaders of an element of the Democratic party that has worked hard for what they considered the best interests of the party, in opposition to another element that has organized clubs, held meetings, registered votes, and been practical in every legitimate and honorable way for the betterment of the party. The latter element has had for leaders men like ex-Mayor William F. Hayes, Major William C. Hayes, Patrick J. McGrath, independent candidate for Mayor, Chairman John C. Bonnett of the City Committee, Congressman William H. Brady, one of the best-known labor leaders of the city, State Committeeman Daniel H. Toomey and M. J. Markley of the City Committee.

"Honest, Able, Sincere."

Ex-Mayor Hayes says: "I know Moran personally, and know him to be honest, able, sincere and a man of good political convictions. He would make an admirable candidate. Whether he would make the most admirable candidate, the next few months ought to show."

David Foster, the old war horse of the local Democracy, delegate to several National conventions and one of the best stump speakers in Western Massachusetts, has no fear that the party will go to the dogs if Moran is nominated. He says: "Mr. Moran has been trying earnestly to carry out the promises he made to the people of Boston when he was a candidate for District-Attorney, and he has succeeded in doing much, especially in the line of the purification of the Legislature. He would make a good candidate, and the Republicans are afraid of him."

John F. Malley, a former chairman of the City Committee, is one of the leading conservatives, and he has come to the conclusion that Moran is the best man for candidate and Governor. "It is too early to tell much about his chances," he says, "but I believe he would have a good show of election."

Has Friends in Chicopee.

In Chicopee, the little city to the north of Springfield, Moran has many friends. In Westfield, the pergest town of any size on the west, there is not much political talk and Moran is not well known. In Amherst and Palmer, on the east, he is considerable Moran sentiment. John Mullen of the Amherst Town Committee is strongly for Moran. Henry H. Holland of Holland & Gulliord, thinks Moran would be of better service to the people as District-Attorney.

MRS. CARTER-PAYNE RAGES OVER HER RIVAL

MRS. LESLIE CARTER-PAYNE. VIRGINIA HARNED.

ACTRESS-BRIDE AND HER RIVAL STAR.

Actress-Bride Creates Tragic Scene in Belasco's Office Because Supplanted as Star.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 18. Today the breach between Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne and David Belasco, the theatrical manager and playwright who made her a star, widened within a short time by the appearance at the theatre of her husband. He came in a cab, and before the vehicle was well at the curbstone, he was out and across the sidewalk into the office. After a fifteen minutes' interval he emerged a speck of a man wrought up. With a succinct order to his driver he sprang into his cab and was gone.

Yesterday's visit was the second Mrs. Carter-Payne has made to the theatre on Forty second street. She was there on Monday evening to see Mr. Belasco, but failed for the reason that as she arrived Mr. Belasco, who was in the act of leaving, slipped out of her sight and when she had fairly passed him hurried out and away.

Mr. Belasco is at present out of town, according to his stage manager, Will S. Dean, and also, according to Dean, is hard at work on a new play. The play is said to be on lines of austere simplicity, and its author originally intended that the leading part in it should be played by Mrs. Carter. This is a departure from the style of any piece in which she has appeared since the new play was intended to show that she is as capable of filling a classwith simple role as she is of interpreting the highly emotional parts which have been her forte.

Face White and Quivering.

Suddenly the office door was flung wide open and Mrs. Carter almost ran out, her face white and quivering, with one hand reach and blood oozing from her wrist. Her wrist was cut by her own hand in her striking and shattering a glass screen in the office or by violent contact with some piece of office furniture can only be conjectured, for Reeder, almost as agitated as the actress and bride, ran to the door and slammed it shut.

Details are undisclosed. Mrs. Carter will not talk. Belasco is away and Reeder is as close as a clam. But that Virginia Harned's name is booked by Belasco and plans are making to have her occupy the star role in the new play Belasco was writing for Mrs. Carter. There is little doubt. Some say that Belasco is merely disciplining Mrs. Carter, but those better informed shake their heads doubtfully at this.

Second Visit to Theatre.

Mrs. Carter-Payne's departure was followed within a short time by the appearance at the theatre of her husband. He came in a cab, and before the vehicle was well at the curbstone, he was out and across the sidewalk into the office. After a fifteen minutes' interval he emerged a speck of a man wrought up. With a succinct order to his driver he sprang into his cab and was gone.

The Capstone of Our Great Pyramid of Mid-Summer Clearance Sales

Public interest and appreciation, volume and value giving are increasing as these busy days of mid-summer clearance sales proceed toward the climax. At the same time lots are rapidly decreasing. Boston's shopping interest is thoroughly aroused. Many of these good things are likely to be gone in the first hour or so of Thursday's business.

Seemingly incredible reductions are explained by the fact that one of the heavy planks in the business platform of the Henry Siegel Co. is to proceed energetically with clearance in mid season—not at the end—with prices that mean early stock adjustment.

Often the very best bargains cannot be advertised because lots are so limited that mail orders alone would more than exhaust the supply.

Of All Our Neckwear Sales This Is the Most Stirring

All our beautiful neckwear, which has made our department the most visited by dresse women during the season, has been marked down to hurry away every piece of the summer stock.

Coming in the mid-season this sale assumes a very unusual importance as a shopping opportunity. Many lines are less than half usual prices.

$2.75 each for $3.95 to $5.00 bolero jackets in venise lace, oriental lace, batiste and lace, point d'esprit trimmed with valenciennes lace, plain wash blonde trimmed with valenciennes lace, with medallions lace.

50c, $1.25 and $1.50 each for chemisettes, worth up to $4.00; embroidered silk with hemstitching and lace. Renaissance lace with medallions.

$1.50 each for $2.50 tailor-made silk stocks; white, black and colors.

50c each for $1.00 and $1.50 wash stocks, handsomely embroidered in white and colors.

Unless the local team gets a big brace on the Tigers will repeat their performance on the last trip here.

Again this afternoon they will endeavor to keep up the string of victories, but it's going to be a hot contest if yesterday's clash is anything to judge by.

Harris or Dineen, whoever appears better fitted for the warm chase, will do the box stunt and either Setser or Bill Donovan will try to do as well as Killian.

Captain Collins was again absent from the ball grounds yesterday, but he was having an inspection of his injured knee.

The feature of the opening game with the Tigers was the ninth inning rally of the home players. It has not happened for some time, and the fans, the few of them who were on the benches, enjoyed the Bitle scare the Tigers got inspecting the box.

If the Tigers hadn't landed on Jesse Tannehill for the eighth and hammered out a couple of homers the result might have been in favor of the Bub men.

Jesse was sailing along as well as his game suckle would let him, allowing only four hits up to the eighth, when O'Leary led off with a terrific clout. He made the circuit, but the run was a fluke delivery as the ball was not handled cleanly in the field. With two out, Jones straightened out a two-bagger and "Germany" Schaefer hit the first ball pitched to him to the flag pole for four bases.

Tannehill made a bad slip up when he passed two men in the fourth, as both scored a hit after two were out.

Killian was having a fine time with the Bub batters till the last time up.

In the seventh Ferris got a life when Schaefer passed him after going out at the coach. Freeman's single advanced Hobe to third and Hayden's fly scored him.

Ferris knocked a single in the ninth and went to second on Freeman's out. Godwin banged one to the left corner for three bases, scoring Hobe. Hayden shot out an infield hit and Buster's nice single to centre scored Godwin. Tannehill forced Hayden at third and Parent did the same to Tannehill at second.

Cheer Up!

By Harry B. Metcalf.

Some sweet day, bye and bye,
When the sun is shining high,
When the clouds have left the sky
And the doctors rectify
All the halt and blind and lame;
When the infield gets more spry,
When the outfield peels its eye,
When the pitchers are more fly
And the batsmen can apply
Swat-stick with a better aim;
When the knockers cease to guy,
And the fans to study skin,
When the other chaps don't try,
Some day, when it's time to die,
Boston's going to win a game!

CHELSEA BOUT IS OFF AGAIN

The White Lewis-Jimmy Gardner bout billed for the Lincoln Club for next Thursday night, has been called off, as Lewis refused to go the limit. The original fight at the club will be on July 31, when Young Sullivan and Gardner and Joe Thomas, the welterweight champion of the South, meet. Johnson Reid of Seattle offered to wire yesterday a $2,500 purse for a meeting between Billy Mellody and the winner of the Kennedy-Dooley bout next week, but Mellody's manager refused.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien Thinks Well of Young Californian's Ability

Wants to Meet Berger in a 20-Round Battle

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien had thoroughly recovered his equilibrium yesterday morning and immediately launched forth into a long statement of his opinion of Sam Berger, who bested him in their fight at the National A. C. Monday night. His first remark was a rich compliment to the ambitious young Californian.

"There was some luck, said Jack, that this fellow Berger's gameness was an unknown quantity before we stepped into the ring, and was that right enough? Anybody who saw that fight must be convinced that the question is settled. Berger is a very formidable opponent for any man, and he has already graduated from the amateur stage to the professional ranks. I met a very good man when I fought him. With a fair amount of experience Berger ought to become very good. I want to meet him in a twenty round bout, and that will give me a much better idea of how we compare. I am glad that Berger put up so good a fight, because it means that the next time we meet there will be a crowded house, and that is what I am after."

Jack then remarked that the Philadelphia newspapers had all given him the decision in the fight, and was told that the New Yorkers had all given the fight to Berger. He seemed quite disappointed but only said, rather sarcastically:

"Well, I suppose I always treated me very courteously. I manage to come out at the top usually, so as far as I only intend to stay in the ring a few more years I am satisfied. It is business for me, you know. They forget over there that I am a middleweight champion and that I am now in my right class of the fighting heavyweights. I do not mention this as an excuse, but merely to point out that they are not treating me exactly justly. I can safely call myself as a heavyweight.

Thought Berger Easy.

"I am afraid of one thing, and that is that I was well trained. I did not expect to have a hard fight with Berger, but I followed my custom and kept in good shape. I had a very hard fight just before the fight and had been in bed three days trying to cure it. After finishing one of my training sessions I took a ride on a trolley and caught cold. After filling up on all sorts of medicines, lemon ade and other things, I managed to get pretty good. But the next time I meet Berger you can depend on it that I will be very much better than I was last night.

"It will come as a surprise to many to learn that Philadelphia Jack has arranged a long programme for himself up to next March. He has already completed a deal whereby he is to go to Australia to meet Bill Squires, the Australian heavyweight champion. A purse of $15,000 has been offered for the match and O'Brien has been guaranteed $5,000 for his trouble, it is said. The fight is to come off in November, but Philadelphia Jack will start on the trip some time during August.

He will go to San Francisco first and thence to the Orient, stopping at many places on his way.

"By this means," said Jack, "I hope to combine pleasure with business."

It is thought that O'Brien had not heard from Manager Tom McCarey of the Pacific A. C. regarding the heavyweight tournament which the latter expected to hold in Los Angeles during August and September. Then he received a letter from McCarey asking him if he would be willing to fight during those months, but as he had already notified McCarey that he intended to go on an extended pilgrimage through foreign countries he will not accept the offer.

"I am not going to fight any more before I leave here," remarked the big Philadelphian. "It is getting too warm now, and the people won't pack houses on hot nights. The warm weather always has a depressing effect on the business."

Jack also waxed eloquent over the offers he had received from England.

Three Fights in England.

"I got an offer from that Englishman who came over here. I forget his name just now. I appear in three fights in the British isles. The purse for each of these is $10,000. The fights are to be held in London, Edinburgh and Manchester, and I will have time then, I will probably go over there to get Gunner Moir and Jim Driscoll are the two whom this Englishman is matching me with.

"Six rounds was too short for that Berger fight," said Jack, suddenly changing the subject. "I am going to give him another chance after I return from my travels. But he still owes twenty rounds then. I was surprised at Berger showing, because I thought I was the peer of all the six middleweights.

"It's a matter of luck," said Sam, "I am not anxious to fight for the next two or three months. I am going to devote all of my time to getting into the best of shape. My ultimate goal is Jeffries, and I know that I will have to be very, very better than I was before I can hope to tackle him.

"I was very much elated over the decision rendered for me last night. I was in good condition and I knew all of the time that I was a little superior to my opponent. It seemed good to me to be back in the ring, and hope to beaten him at his own game. That is much satisfaction to me, and I am now going to make any reply to the offer until he try to do even better."

BERGER SAYS HIS ULTIMATE GOAL IS TO FIGHT JEFFRIES

NEW YORK, July 18.—Sam Berger came to New York yesterday and put up at the Hotel Wellington. He was in fine shape for the coming bout with Jack O'Brien, except a cut over the left eye. He said that he cut was cut by O'Brien's elbow during one of their clinches and that the wound was not at all serious.

Upon his arrival here he found awaiting him one offer from Coffroth asking him to box in San Francisco during August and September. There is some trouble about the articles, as the Philadelphian refuses to sign before a local time, straightening out the affairs. Berger said that he was not going to make any reply to the offer until he

"My ultimate goal is Jeffries," said Berger, "and if I can defeat all of my opponents in the next few months I am going to devote all of my time to getting into the best of shape. My ultimate goal is Jeffries, and I know that I will have to be very, very better than I was before I can hope to tackle him.

GAFF AND GOSSIP HEARD AT RACES

By EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

"The coolest spot in America," was what everybody said that was at the races yesterday.

The breeze through the grandstand was enough to make the greatest clincher give up a dollar to escape the torrid weather.

For a real game proposition there is nothing in horseside sport like watching the stallion New York. Ten times he has faced the barrier at the Salem track at this meeting, yet the way he comes out from down in the last quarter was a caution.

Little Wiley is to be commended, too, on the handling of New York. He sized his drive to an inch, and that was about what he won by. Glory to the winner, always.

Don't forget to be in the swim on Thursday. "The Tourists" will be at the track in all their glory, and not to be next must mean that the followers of the ponies do not admire the beauties of every degree. A special programme, too, on the course has been laid out for the entertainment of the patrons of Rockingham Park.

Starter Marc Cassidy is not only the peer of all wielders of the flag, but he is a thorough horseman, and to end. Outside of the runners he owns several trotters and pacers. One is a pacer, named Doubtful, by Direct, 2:05¼, that last fall showed a trial in 2:03¾. He has no record, but is in the stable of Mart Demarest.

Mart thinks so well of him that he has persuaded Cassidy to keep the gelding over till next season and enter him in the slow-pacing stakes down the Grand Circuit.

Apocher of Cassidy's is a five-year-old trotting filly, by Chimes, out of the famous brood mare Gretchen. She is in the charge of John Bradbury of the old Village Farm, outside of Buffalo. John wrote Cassidy the other morning that while he had just broken the filly, yet she had on the first time asking trotted a quarter in 35½ seconds, and he thinks she is the most promising piece of horseflesh he has ever had charge of. That's "goin' suthin."

Tom Lynch hove into the track yesterday with a brand new straw bonnet. For decorations was a baby blue ribbon, with a narrow white strip through the centre. "Warm?" Well, it was the nearest to putting everything else into "submission" on the grounds. The officials of the track have made arrangements with Tom to wear the hat the remainder of the meeting. Look out for a greatly increased attendance from now out. There is nothing like advertising.

The regulars are grieved if perchance "Happy's" tips sound go astray. Now the best of it is that the manager of "Happy's" tips is willing to bet 2 to 1, at any stage of the game, he picks more winners than anyone else in the business. Telling this story is a straight tip, so here is a chance to get onto the band wagon.

Reports from Brighton Beach are to the effect that it was a shame how the backers of J. C. Cox put the "bookie" out of business on Monday. It is said that yesterday no less than twenty were absent from the betting ring on this account. Possibly they were out hunting for their dead sum for more funds, as trade was good.

Charley Bergen is thinking of making Boston his home in the future. It is the first time he was ever East so far, but a week last Sunday in the beginning convinced him that the 11 o'clock law was nothing to talk about when there is so much to be handy simply for the price of a car fare.

HARRY LENNOX SIGNS.

ALTOONA, Pa., July 18.—The Philadelphia American League club last night signed Third Baseman Harry Lennox of the Altoona Trianon League club. The Lennox club will fight hard for this player, and will take the case into the courts. It is claimed that Lennox signed a contract with Lancaster.

B. Y. C. FLEET AT PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Me., July 18.—The Boston Y. C. fleet arrived here yesterday afternoon from Cape Porpoise and will remain until to-morrow, when it will continue on the cruise to Five Islands. Because of the death of Charles G. Rice of South Boston, who was one of the judges, and a member of the regatta committee, there will be no races yesterday.

All demonstrations also were omitted in respect to the deceased member, and colors will be at half-mast during the remainder of the cruise. There will be music in the harbor to-day, as arranged.

The visiting yachtsmen were tendered a reception last evening at the house of the Portland Y. C.

TENNEY WON'T SELL YOUNG

CINCINNATI, July 18.—A report reached here from St. Louis that the Giants were to make an offer of $5,000 for Cy Young, the Boston left-handed twirler, in the near chance in the world," said Tenney, when asked concerning the matter, "we need the money in business to build up our team, and not to pull it down. Under no circumstances would we part with Young. Of course I am speaking on my own responsibility, but I am sure the club owners will agree with me. As yet I have heard nothing about the report."

GLIDDEN TOURISTS NOW EN ROUTE TO MONTREAL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

HOTEL CHAMPLAIN, Clinton County, N. Y., July 18.—The participants in the Glidden tour left Burlington this morning at 7 o'clock, and it came about. A hard chase proved the order of arrival, and then there was a rush for home at a high speed.

The start was delayed one hour and one half in the morning in order to permit the custom officials at Rouses Point to get here in time to clear the baggage of the tourists from United States to Canada. Most of the preliminaries of the day's work have been attended to, two custom officers from both countries having been here all of yesterday going over the cars and tonnes papers.

Each of the operators and cars in the run have been licensed and registered in Canada, so that all difficulties on that side have been obviated. The rest of yesterday afternoon was passed the men in good shape for the work now before them.

There is a lot of consolation in the fact that there will be only day of recruiting and repairing. Chichester Chemical Co., 2866 Madison Square, PHILA., Pa.

Appearance of Party Changed.

The appearance of the party changed materially and quickly. This is about the prettiest and most comfortable stopping point met with on the run, and in the minds of all it seems a pity that they should be forced to leave this beautiful spot for the dusty, rutty, tough road between this point and Montreal. A distance of seventy nine miles of rigs experience and loss of points to many of the present contestants.

There are now seventy-six cars with no penalties against them, and these are being minutely watched by all.

There is an evident desire on the part of each to see that the others conform entirely to the rulings and conditions. As the minor of clean scores decrease, the enlarged list becomes keener and keener, so that the man who wins the Glidden will surely win it on merit alone.

Two Clean Score Men Fell.

Two clean score men fell by the wayside yesterday, and if one half of what is said about the condition of the road to-day Rouses Point is true, then there will surely be another drop in the list before Montreal is reached.

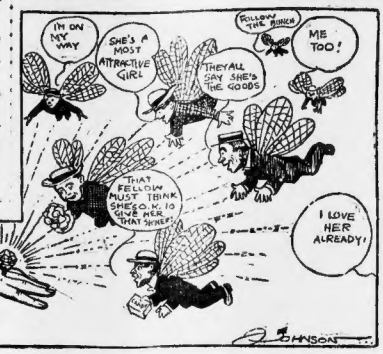
FOOLISH FABLES FOR FLY FOLKS

SHE WORE A SOLITAIRE THAT LOOKED LIKE THE HEADLIGHT OF A LOCOMOTIVE

BY DOROTHY DIX

This Fable Teaches That Men Only Admire the Admired and That a Good Bluff Often Takes the Pot



ONCE upon a time there was a Young Maiden who greatly desired to Win Out as a Belle, and to have Men following her about all the Taffeta that fell her way.

She had to a finish that two fine qualities had kept Hired Girl, and so was entitled to rank among the American Aristocracy, and her Father had Grubbed together enough Jack to buy her a ticket of admission into the Front Row of Society.

Furthermore she was a most Admirable Character. She was a graduate of the Female Sects of Learning and had Views on Hooch, and occasionally performed Stunts in the Sunday School. Nor was this for Publicity, she was possessed of Much Pulchritude, and could wear White Canvas Shoes without her feet looking like Unraised Buns.

From all this the Artistic Reader will jump to the conclusion that the Maiden was a Peach, but she was the sort of Peach that a Man preserves in his Library, but does not care to Gather himself.

Therefore, although the Maiden went everywhere, her Mother or Father had to chaperone her, and although Fifi the Lapdog had Brains, and favorably was talked out by Confectioners, no Man ever Proposed to her on a Moral Recreation. This was the reason that I Never Appear out Again, and I used her Cackle, for she did with a Beau's Income she would not think not desire to bring upon the Patent Steer, that you can be Too Particular with Young Joy and she Greatly Enjoy discussing the Girls. Tell me, I pray you, why this is thus, and why, although I have The Goods, no Man Admires me?"

"Perhaps you got off on the Wrong Foot when you made your Debut?" suggested the Chaperon.

The Wrong Start

"Mock, you," responded the Maiden, "for my Mother went about telling everybody how Intellectual I was, and that I was full of Noble Ideals."

At hearing these words the Chaperon Shuddered with Horror, and Turned Pale. "My poor Child," she cried, clasping the Maiden to her breast, "you have, indeed, been heavily Handicapped, but cheer up. All is not yet lost, but you will have to go Away from Home where your Reputation for Cleverness in Reading Browning at Sight is not known, and Take a Fresh Start."

"It's me for the hike," assented the Maiden.

"And," pursued the Chaperon, "if you wish attraction from Men you must at once Announce your Engagement."

"But," objected the Maiden, "if I Give Out that I am going to Tie Up with one Man, will it not Queer me with the others? Will it not seem to them almost as Bad as if I was Married?"

"As Good as if you were Married," corrected the Chaperon, "for it will make the Men feel Perfectly Safe in Making Love to you. Besides, it will add to your Value and Desirability, for a Man never really wants anything until he sees that Some Other Man has got it."

"I see," observed," said the Maiden, "that the Girl who had plenty of Beaux got more Beaux, while the Girl who had only one Beau had even that One taken away from her. Life."

"There is One Subject on which every Man requires to be Backed Up by the only Son of his Fellow Men," quoth the Chaperon, "and that is in his views about a Woman. That is the Reason that they so love their Leader the Sheep, when somebody announces that a certain Female is the Right Cut of Calico."

Valuable Advice

"Therefore, a Woman who is Wise to the Game always keeps up the illusion that Men often Takes the Pot.

AFAVORITE axiom of the creator of the Prussian monarchy, Frederick the Great, was that "an army marches on its stomach."

The truth of it was demonstrated during the war between France and Germany in 1870. The food supplied to the Prussian soldiers was better than that provided for the French, it was more portable, more palatable, and more nutritious. Undoubtedly it was one of the factors that led them to victory.

That a household marches on its stomach is every whit as true. It is true indeed of every individual that the march of life "is on the stomach." Consider this fact in elementary physiology.

All brain power depends upon the, proper circulation of blood and its efficient nourishment. When the blood is very poor (as in anaemia) the mind is apt to become dull. When it is charged with bile, as it is when the liver does not act, a person becomes peevish, irritable and despondent.

When it is loaded with poison, as in uraemia, and uric acid is not eliminated from the system, stupor and coma supervene. The blood is indeed the life, and it is dependent for its renewal upon the daily food supply.

There is no need, therefore, for much concern as to what to eat, or explanation to prove the connection between breakdown and cookery; for if cookery be the proper art that it is the world may be made worthless for purposes of nutrition.

Eat With Reason

"COOKING is fully done," said a well-known doctor, "will destroy the character and value of food. It is possible to render a haze of the same flavor as veal, and seldom no better than kid." Bad cookery is also a very potent factor for the invocation of dyspepsia.

The incompetent cook is one of the greatest forces on earth for calling it into being commonly bringing breakdown, sometimes of a very serious character.

The sedentary worker is much more liable to dyspepsia than the man or woman who spends an active outdoor life. There is no class whom it so much behooves to guard against its insidious influence as that of the great army of office workers, those who, year in, year out, are "chained to the desk." Every one of these is doomed to toil for a living with brain and pen, or who is constrained by the exigencies of occupation to sit for the major part of the day pent up in one room, should remember that he cannot eat like a ploughman without sooner or later doing serious harm to his health.

It has been truly said that a man who in India eats and drinks like an Irelander cannot escape illness.

It is equally true to say that the clerk who lives like the laborer cannot escape disease.

Avoid Breakdown

IT is easy to understand why this should be the case. Nothing is so stimulating to the stomach as fresh air. It gives tone and strength to it, and this causes the secretion of the digestive juices to be abundant. Exercise gives tonicity to the stomach muscles and causes them to perform the mechanical part of the work of digestion in a vigorous manner.

A man who is doing hard bodily labor all day in the open air is much like an ostrich as far as his digestion goes; he can digest almost any amount of anything.

It is far otherwise for one who is obliged to breathe the vitiated air of a crowded room, and whose exercise is rarely more than the walk to catch a car or train.

The only thing he can do if he wants to avoid breakdown is to suit his diet to the character of work he does, and avoid overtaxing his digestion, as he cannot live in a way that will make it a powerful one.

For instance, a man who works in a city office and who lives close to the conveyance that takes him to it does not need, or rather will be very much better without, any food at breakfast. He should at this meal limit himself to fish, or eggs and bacon.

These, with plenty of fruit, give all the nourishment needed to keep a sedentary man going from eight till one.

A limited knowledge of cookery is the chief cause for the over-consumption of meat and those heavy, "substantial" kinds of food that are so injurious to people leading sedentary lives.

Cookery is an art, not a piece of household drudgery, as it is too frequently looked upon by mistress and maid. Like all arts it needs study, and in its practice it needs some thought and care. This is really why many women object to it.

They prefer the easier method of putting a piece of meat in a pan, and letting it fry, or slightly more troublesome work of constructing nutritious and digestive dishes.

Doubtful Cooking Will Cause Strong Men to Break Down

The Cardboard Box

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner.

THE boy's news which had occasioned such alarm in the Parsslow establishment had been correct enough. Someone had come by water to the crazy old house and was picking his way cautiously across the dark yard. As Marr rushed up he recognized the intruder.

"Why, it's Parslow, why do you come in this mysterious fashion, scaring me?" he exclaimed.

A mellow, oily voice answered out of the darkness:

"My dear Mair, I object most emphatically to your language. Surely it is easy to express surprise, relief or any emotion in proper, my good fellow, they jar."

Farmer laughed.

"Well, we never expected you to come by the river, you see. I can tell you, you sent Rumilt off in a hurry and in the desire of a wise to stir up some recognizable stuff in the melting pot."

Mr. Parslow laughed.

"A guilty conscience, eh? Then you've got you've actually got the diamond?" he cried eagerly in a lower tone, peering close in the dark. What made you try for it in the daytime before the coup was arranged for?"

"Oh, the credit belongs to Jarman here. You've not met Jarman, I think?"

"I have not had that pleasure," said Mr. Parslow, in his courtly fashion. "I hope you are quite well, Mr. Jarman? I read all about the looting of the diamond in the evening papers, of course, and my heart fluttered me, Marr. It failed me, I confess, upward was ingenious and evidently successful but you are not quite safe yet, you know. A bit like it. I felt sure the other gang had slipped in and forestalled us. But you, I was almost overwhelmed with relief. Fortunately, Joy never kills."

A Costly Error

"No more it was our scheme," said Marr. "It was Bongeisein's. Only——" He paused with a laugh.

"Don't keep me in suspense, my good fellow. Give me the opportunity of laughing with you. You say it was this Bongeisein who got the gem? I noticed from the telegram that the stone was in your possession," Mr. Parslow said, anxiously.

"So it is. Does that feel your mind at rest? Bongeisein's man messed things up from the point of view, anyhow. He passed the plunder to Jarman."

Mr. Parslow seemed extremely amused. "Really? How humorous!" he said, with a rather foolish titter. "But I fear the humor will be lost on Mr. Bongeisein, sympathize with him—he'll take it to heart very much, I fear."

Then went into the house. Jim was no longer in the room. Marr called out cautiously to the "fence," who came in stooping his brow with a dirty handkerchief.

"Lord, how you scared us, Mr. Parslow."

"Parslow, if it is all the same to you, Rumilt," corrected the newcomer, a shade impatiently. "So you've actually got the diamond?"

"We've quite thought you wasn't coming, and we'd almost decided to keep the dicmond among ourselves," chuckled Rumilt, with a sound in his throat like the gurgling of an emptying syphon. "Yes, we've got the stone. Hullo, here's Jim! Here, have a drink its luck, straight off—now!"

"Good evening, Mr. Parslow——" said Mrs. Rumilt, amiably, with no intention of taking liberties with his name.

"Parslow, ma'am, Parslow, thank you," said that gentleman, with a shade of testiness in his manner, as he took with a shudder the hand she offered before the hand she extended; he held it loosely for a second, then dropped it, as if there was no particular use for it.

"Parslow, Parslow, you're allers wellsome here, I'm sure," cried Mrs. Rumilt in a burst of cordiality, who was not a bad-looking old woman, despite her pockets." In the profession she and her husband in his humble way ailed the highest rank.

In his time Mr. Robert Parslow had been one of the most successful "fences" or buyers of stolen property in New York and had made a fortune at it. He had retired from active business some time ago, but he could not quite shake off the force of old habits, and the chance of some exceptional "plum" seldom appealed to him in vain.

He was a short, pleasant looking old gentleman, with a shiny bald head and white whiskers under his chin, while his upper lip was clean-shaved. He had a dignified air that rather suggested an ex-butler, was invariably dressed with the most a supper and social evening to members of punctilious care in a frock coat, with a flower in his buttonhole, and looked the picture of placid benevolence.

He had a charming residence standing in its own grounds in the suburb of Belcourt, where he was well known and highly respected, and frequently in the course of local meetings to aid of various causes. His gardens were beautifully kept. Mr. Parslow not only spent a good deal of time in superintending his garden, but might often be seen in his white shirt sleeves wielding a spade himself. His roses and early onions gained always took prize at shows.

Perhaps the proudest moment of his life had been when certain stately bloom of great renown had been called after him; and ever since the greatest trouble of his existence was that during the war in South Africa a fanciful resemblance in the face of the President of the Transvaal had caused the Boersshorist orchins to christen him Kruger.

A Lively Dinner

Mr. Parslow's benevolent twinkling eyes looked around the room.

"I am invited to believe you are having a game with an old man," he said genially, "and shall continue to think so until I see the diamond."

Rumilt laughed. "You kept us waiting so long, Mr. Parslow, you'll keep you waiting till we've had a drink anyhow. Jim, you've been drinking, I'll tell you this; you'll say it was worth coming from Australia to see."

"Really you must not blame me," Mr. Parslow said in his dignified way. "I have been over at Newark. A gentleman, an acquaintance of mine, was giving and still they come."

"Ah, I was there, was her?" said Rumilt, with interest.

At Last

"And now out after doing time. How presumptuous these young men are! He actually whispered to me that he minded the time when we'd done a lot of business together. Luckily, my friend was in the other end of the room. Never shall I forget the look of disappointment that came over Alberta's face when he saw that I was wearing a dollar watch. I'll drown the whiskey, please ma'am."

He took the glass from Mrs. Rumilt's hands.

Drink Milk If You Want to Be Healthy

MILK is a valuable and indispensable article of food. It supplies to the system all the nutritive elements that are necessary to keep the body in the best of condition. Not only may infants and children live almost entirely upon it, but grown people as well.

One man lived on nothing else for more than thirty-five years, and to-day he has quite the strength of an ordinary man at eating man.

Too little attention is paid as a rule to the milk that is taken into and used in the household.

People are not sufficiently particular about knowing that it comes from a healthy and well-kept dairy. Nor are they careful about keeping it in a proper place when it reaches home.

If not already bottled when received, milk should be poured into bottles kept expressly for this purpose that have been cleaned with a solution of borax and warm water, allowed to remain in the bottle over night and then washed out with fresh warm water.

Milk is strongly advised that no milk should be left in bottles that are only partly filled, but if this cannot be helped then treat it in the following manner: Fill up the top so that no air may enter, then cover thoroughly and set in a cool place or on ice.

The raw milk to be fed to babies should constitute one of the most important factors in a mothers attention to the welfare of her little one.

Though milk is a most valuable food and contains all that is essential to the nourishment of the human infant in ordinary health, frequently succumbs within its whitened grave of disease.

Scarlet fever, diphtheria often come through milk supplied by dairymen in which disease germs exist.

Even when milk cannot be conveyed through milk often the cause that need and salt codfish.

This was the reason that I Never Appear out Again, and I used her Cackle, for she did with a Beau's Income she would not think not desire to bring upon the Patent Steer, that you can be Too Particular with Young Joy and she Greatly Enjoy discussing the Girls. Tell me, I pray you, why this is thus, and why, although I have The Goods, no Man Admires me?"

"Perhaps you got off on the Wrong Foot when you made your Debut?" suggested the Chaperon.

The Wrong Start

"Mock, you," responded the Maiden, "for my Mother went about telling everybody how Intellectual I was, and that I was full of Noble Ideals."

At hearing these words the Chaperon Shuddered with Horror, and Turned Pale. "My poor Child," she cried, clasping the Maiden to her breast, "you have, indeed, been heavily Handicapped, but cheer up. All is not yet lost, but you will have to go Away from Home where your Reputation for Cleverness in Reading Browning at Sight is not known, and Take a Fresh Start."

"It's me for the hike," assented the Maiden.

"And," pursued the Chaperon, "if you wish attraction from Men you must at once Announce your Engagement."

"But," objected the Maiden, "if I Give Out that I am going to Tie Up with one Man, will it not Queer me with the others? Will it not seem to them almost as Bad as if I was Married?"

"As Good as if you were Married," corrected the Chaperon, "for it will make the Men feel Perfectly Safe in Making Love to you. Besides, it will add to your Value and Desirability, for a Man never really wants anything until he sees that Some Other Man has got it."

"I see," observed," said the Maiden, "that the Girl who had plenty of Beaux got more Beaux, while the Girl who had only one Beau had even that One taken away from her. Life."

"There is One Subject on which every Man requires to be Backed Up by the only Son of his Fellow Men," quoth the Chaperon, "and that is in his views about a Woman. That is the Reason that they so love their Leader the Sheep, when somebody announces that a certain Female is the Right Cut of Calico."

Valuable Advice

"Therefore, a Woman who is Wise to the Game always keeps up the illusion that Men often Takes the Pot.

WHAT WOMEN ARE PRETTIEST?

AN artist gives the palm for beauty and symmetry of figure to the girls of Spain, while the daughters of rural Ireland come a good second.

The pretty faces and graceful throats are found in British matches. A model from a perfect arm would be sought for among Circassian belles, while a lady of the Turkish harem would be regarded as the possessor of a daintily commendable hand.

Italians are usually good in figure, and some of the most beautiful models, perfectly proportioned, are derived from the women of sunny Italy.

French women, as a rule, are not in request, being too plain and colorless for the purpose, while the face and limbs of a German girl are too commonplace for artistic work.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIVE UP THE FIRST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of nineteen and am in love with a young man two years my senior. I met him first while at my house quite frequently and has taken me out a few times. Of late when I see him the more I love him; and I know he loves me also. I did go with another young man before the first one, for two and half years, and I loved him, but we had several quarrels and now I have no more use for him. Then I fell in love with the second man and made him far better than the first one, but he does not want to go with me unless I stop talking with the first one.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I would like to know what I am to do, give up the first young man, as I don't care for him, or go with the second, as I love him dearly?

CONSTANT READER.

GIVE up the first man. You say you do not love him, so it will be no hard matter. You cannot go with both without making trouble.

GIVE HIM UP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

While I was in the country last summer, I became engaged to be to a young man. When I was going back to the city he asked me to write to him, which I did. We kept up a correspondence all the time I was in the country. In every letter he expressed his affection for me. He said he would get married to me in about two years, when he would have a better position. Now I am living beside him this Summer again. He never comes to any of the promises he made to me in his letters. He is very much under his parents to know so speaks to me. If he should ask me to write to him when I am going to the city again, would you advise me to keep up his acquaintance.

PERPLEXED JUDA.

INDEED, I would give up any man who treated me in such a cruel way. I would not agree to write to him again; he will only treat you the same way. If I were you I would speak to him, but would not have anything more to do with him that that. He has treated you badly and does not deserve more at your hands.

THE ORIGINAL OF THIS PHOTOGRAPH WINS THE PRIZE

"AND still they come."

It's a surprising—the startling regularity with which the pictures of women shoppers on this page are identifying themselves.

Yesterday's prize winner, these days, when one of the daily prizes of $2 remains unclaimed for more than forty-eight hours.

Seems like every woman in Boston or every woman who ever visits Boston on a shopping tour is on the watch for her photo to appear in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Yesterday Mrs. H. M. Harding of No. 259 Washington street, Malden, called at this office and identified the little snapshot of her which appeared on this page last Friday. In the morning she went shopping, and the camera man caught her as she stepped out of the store of L. Starr & Co., on Winter street.

That evening she had a few friends to dinner, among them Mrs. Malden fairly took her breath away by showing her her photograph.

"Shopping this morning I see," was the indictment.

"Guilty," pleaded Mrs. Harding.

When she called at the BOSTON AMERICAN office she was delighted to receive the original photograph, in addition to the award of $2.

Moral—Watch for the camera man. He's out to catch you any morning. He's in the neighborhood of stores patronized by readers of this newspaper, about 11 o'clock.

FOR ENLARGED PORES

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly give me a formula for enlarged pores caused by pimples and blackheads. C. M. B.

TRY this remedy for the enlarged pores: Boric acid, 1 dram; distilled witch-hazel, 4 ounces. Apply with a piece of old linen or absorbent cotton.

This will answer the appeal of several others, who, I hope, will take notice of it.

MAUD THE MULE NOW A FEATURE AT WONDERLAND

Tens of Thousands Visit Magic City by the Sea on Sunday

American Free Tickets.

ROMANCE "GANGS AGLEY"

In spite of heat, in spite of black clouds which threaten storm, even when it rains, Wonderland attracts the people of Greater Boston, and so today, no matter what the weather may be or portend, thousands of people who have not yet used the free tickets published in last Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will visit the great pleasure resort by the sea.

And Maud will welcome them.

Maud, the only actual living embodiment of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S famous mule, with Russell Clarke as a real live "36," is one of the greatest drawing cards of Wild Bill Kennedy's Indian Congress. The two are part and parcel of the great pleasuring place, and the crowd of girls and boys, and their elders, too, for that matter, would be lost without them.

Who could "bully-ho" the Wild West show if "Maud" and "Mulie" were far away? Kennedy almost turns pale when the thought is suggested. And Maud actually consented to pose for a picture from which for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"I've had Maud over a year now," said "Eddie" Clarke to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Where did I get the idea? Why, from upper's picture in the rotogravure section of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. I wanted to be a cowboy, and before I attached myself to Wild Bill's show, but for five years I've done the "Mulie" act.

"When I got to studying Maud to the paper they also came to me to write the Mulie real life, and I hunted up a "Maud" exactly as she's got all of Maud's tricks and a few more tucked under that thick hide of hers. Oh, she's immense! Strong enough, but I get my lumps good and often, and in the show and in the stable, for I never let any one else have anything to do with her. Maud is mine and I am hers.

"Maud a Born Kicker."

"Don't trust her? She has no confidants. She wants none. Maud is a born kicker, and I've given her a little education as a polish. The cowboys who crowd ride anything from a broncho to a cyclone making hurdles off the track have a great respect for Maud, and none of them will ride her. In the Wister Maud and I retire from public life. We go to Kennedy's ranch at Perry, Oklahoma, always with the Indians and cowboys. Maud will be comfortable, while I hunt, if there's any game, but not on the year we are there will be the sweet of our bones as the Boston people worry over it.

"How the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN readers are visiting Wonderland, great loaded boxes full of the free tickets have attest. They are being received by tens of thousands. Yesterday, the hottest day, and threatening storm, the tickets came in more than any other day since the management. With all the experiences of former weeks, the handling of these tickets which are being received at Wonderland, eclipsed the first BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, has passed all their expectations.

This shows how popular Wonderland is becoming. The management does not count back number, or count, but only to-day, that is, the people come and will come.

Daring Balloon Ascent.

Professor Lalloon, the aeronaut, who will make a new ascension with his balloon each evening this week at 5 o'clock, has had exciting ended skyward in the face of squalls and clouds that threatened to end in having themselves at him and his airship as though to engulf them.

At 5 o'clock, right up into the electric storm which was raging in the upper air, the intrepid Lalloon sailed his airship. Up to noon shot high into the storm for his lofty ones, and when high above the other ascensions the Professor jumped from the basket and shot down toward the earth like an arrow. Then, when it was a matter, like that of the broken neck of some great arrow, and the aeronaut vanished, caught the air, and the aeronaut descended easily and gracefully.

The professor broke the record for high ascensions in the balloons on Sunday ago in Providence, R. I. He has been in the many years in Wonderland and has had experiences most all the adventures which ascensionists and court if they continue at their perilous calling.

Great Bally-Ho Rivalry.

Each day the great parades which are held in the Boulevard are becoming a greater attraction and more complete as a whole display. There has sprung up a friendly and more rivalry between the old Feet Americans as to which will hand the best display in the parades.

A ton of water outdoor, free performances, take place every one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the other about 7 in the evening. In each place there is a Wonderful feature, and they are a ways kept a ours, every one of the features is free to public and upon the first shows. There is the greatest human curiosity to think no some new and fantastic form of spectacle can be the parade.

The information bureau recently established is a great improvement, and one which the public greatly appreciates. It solves hundreds of knotty problems and makes the pleasures of Wonderland much the more easy to see and enjoy. To know that there is go and what to see and how everything may be seen in order that an afternoon shall be one round of pleasure, but sandwiched with long and fascinating halts, which the information bureau does for the visitors in the most kind. Strangers have everything made easy, and are told where they can see all of the countless attractions at their best.

BIG BRIDGE TRAVELS MILE

NEW YORK, July 18.—The 1,500 ton draw of the Harlem ship canal bridge has been moved a mile down the river by four tugs and put upon its pivot cap in the new 20th street bridge without the slightest of a hitch.

By harnessing the tide E. F. Terry of the Terry & Tench Company and the engineers under his charge forced the draw of the water in the ship canal to do the work of lifting the mass of steel from its pier and easily settling it upon the new draw rack prepared for it a mile down stream.

ONE LAD RESCUES ANOTHER.

QUINCY, July 18.—R. R. Ferris, age inches, was seized with cramps while at Sunday yesterday, and had gone down to rise when Gaynor Stirrin, fourteen years old, leaped in with his clothes on and brought him ashore. He was uncon- scious when revived.

Jurgis was driven out to the Bridewell for the second time. In his tumbling around he had hurt his arm again, and so could do no work, but he had succeeded in the police station. Also his head and his eye had to be tied up—and so he was a pretty looking object when, the second day after his arrival, he went out into the corridor to court and encountered—Jack Duane!

The young man knew enough to see Jurgis had he almost bugged him. "By God, if it isn't the Slinker!" he cried. "And what is it you've been through a passage-way?"

"No," said Jurgis. "But I've been in a railroad wreck and a fight." And then, while some of the other prisoners gathered round, he told his wild story; most of them were Hyperboreans, but they knew what Jurgis could never have made up such a yarn as that.

"Hard luck, old man," he said, when they were alone; "but maybe it's taught you a lesson."

"I've learned some things since I saw you last," said Jurgis, grimly. "Then he explained how he had spent the last summer, "finishing it off with the police." "And you?" he asked, finally. "Have you been here ever since?"

"Lord, no!" said the other. "I only came in the day after you got out. They've sent me up on a bum charge, they've sent me up on a bum charge, they've sent me up on a bum charge, they

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JULY 18, 1906

What Do YOU Call Freedom?

When You Use the Word Have You Any Well-Defined Idea of Its Meaning? If Not, Think It Over

We live in "the land of the free."

We talk about freedom a great deal, and we shoot off firecrackers to emphasize freedom's duties at least once a year.

What is freedom?

The word has had many definitions given to it. And for every definition in writing there have been at least a million, more or less, vaguely expressed in the human mind.

Reader, what do YOU have in mind when you use the word freedom? What should be the thought of the every-day, good American citizen when he utters that word?

To begin with, NOT ONE OF US IS LITERALLY FREE. And it would be a great misfortune if we were free, in the most complete and wrong sense of that word.

We are not free to ignore the laws.

We are not free to ignore our neighbor's rights.

We are not free to use the strength that nature gives us, unless we use it according to rules made by others.

We are not free to take what we want.

In every direction we are bound by rules, by laws.

But this does not mean an absence of the freedom THAT THE GOOD CITIZEN DEMANDS FOR HIMSELF.

The man who is fit to be free asks only for himself what he is willing to give to others. He asks laws EQUALLY APPLIED.

He asks the right to think and speak and believe as he sees fit, so long as he does not infringe such rights in others.

Freedom is the sister of equality. There cannot be one without the other. And that is one reason why the battle of freedom CANNOT BE CONSIDERED THOROUGHLY FOUGHT OUT IN THE UNITED STATES YET.

While the rich man and the poor man are not equal in the eye of the law and in the punishments of the law there is no real freedom.

While the powerful man, hiding behind his lawyer and his corporation, can commit with impunity crimes a million times as great as those which put thousands of feeble men in jail, we have not REAL freedom.

But in comparison with other peoples, and in comparison with all of the past, WE REALLY ARE FREE.

Let us define freedom more clearly and see what it is that we are striving for.

We want a chance to develop, on even terms, all of the good—the talent, the energy, the genius—that may be in us.

We want the right to possess and enjoy more than others have if we can honestly and on equal terms before the law acquire OR ACTUALLY PRODUCE MORE THAN OTHERS HAVE.

There is, of course, the occasional lofty soul whose idea of freedom, WHOSE ONLY IDEA OF FREEDOM, is freedom from the sight of human misery. There are many who will always feel themselves slaves in a wretched world so long as any of their fellow-beings suffer poverty and injustice.

But those are the exceptions. They do not make up the people.

The ordinary good man wants to be free TO DO THE BEST HE CAN WHILE OTHERS HAVE A CHANCE TO DO THE BEST THEY CAN.

The good man with the SANE idea of freedom does not stupidly demand absence of control by law. That is the dream of the anarchist, the seeker after the impossible, the self-indulgent dreamer, who refuses to recognize the fact that all of our progress is the result of law, and that anarchy—which means license, not liberty—would be to ignore the fact that the collective wisdom is infinitely superior to the wisdom of the individual.

The sane man wants freedom to keep what belongs to him.

He does not want to confiscate the property of the rich. HE DOES NOT WANT THE RICH TO CONFISCATE HIS PROPERTY.

He would not seize upon the actual possessions of any corporation, trust or individual, however iniquitous. BUT HE WANTS TRUSTS, INDIVIDUALS AND CORPORATIONS TO STOP ROBBING HIM.

Freedom means a little more than the mere chance to struggle on a competitive basis. It means the opportunity to develop ON A BASIS OF BROTHERHOOD.

Nature, coercing us with the instinct of self-preservation, compels us to stay on this earth. The honest man feels that if he is willing to work and do his best, a free country should give him work, an opportunity to live AT LEAST DECENTLY in obeying nature's commands.

Real freedom means FREEDOM OF THE INTELLECT; and, therefore, it involves the education of the child. FOR NO BRAIN IS FREE UNTIL IT HAS BEEN TAUGHT.

Therefore, the American public school is the very Temple of Freedom itself.

Freedom for the mother means the possibility of seeing her children happy, NOT HUNGRY; not cold in Winter or half-suffocated in Summer. The nation's mothers will not be free from a torture worse than any black slave ever offered so long as dull civilization shall murder children by the millions because it is too dull to give them the fresh air, plain food and the pure water that nature supplies so abundantly.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

O, I hear the people calling through the day time and the night time—
They are calling, they are crying for the coming of the right time.
"It behooves you, men and women, it behooves you to be heeding.
For there lurks a note of menace underneath their plaintive pleading.

Let the land usurpers listen, let the greedy-hearted ponder;
On the moaning of the murmur, rising here and swelling yonder;
Swelling louder, waxing stronger, like a storm-fed stream that courses
Through the valleys, down abysses, growing, gaining with new forces.

Day by day the river widens, that great river of opinion,
And its torrent beats and plunges at the base of greed's dominion.
Though you dam it by oppression and fling golden bridges o'er it,
Yet the day and hour advances when in fright you flee before it.

Yes, I hear the people calling, through the night time and the day time—
Wretched toilers in life's Autumn, weary young ones in life's May time.
They are crying, they are calling, for their share of work and pleasure,
You are heaping high your coffers while you give them scanty measure;
You have stolen God's wide acres, just to glut your woollen purses—
Oh, restore them to His children ere their pleading turns to curses.

Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control—
These three alone lead life to sovereign power.
